Senate Health Care Bill is Bad Medicine for Patients

We all know health care needs reform. But legislation pending in the U.S. Senate is not the right remedy.

The doctor-patient relationship is at the heart of quality care. Yet the bill in the Senate undermines this principle, expanding the role of the federal government in health care decisions and empowering it with the authority to impose penalties on doctors and patients.

The current Senate bill also jeopardizes patient access to the physician of your choice.

We are united in our desire to improve health care. But in its rush to reform, the Senate must not destroy the doctor-patient relationship, nor set us on a path that could be harmful to our patients.

Call Senators Blanche Lincoln and Mark Pryor: Tell them to vote “no” on the current Senate bill and work for reform that protects Arkansas patients.
